Mr. Stephenson was born on July 4, 1809, of English and Scotch parentage, near Armagh, Ireland. With his parents he came to New York in 1811, and lived here until his death. He was educated at the Wesleyan Seminary in this city, and it was the intention of his father that he should pursue a mercantile life. He spent three years in a counting-house, but his mechanical turn of mind finally induced his father to apprentice him, at the age of 17, to a coachmaker. The elder Stephenson set aside a room in his house, filled it with tools and encouraged his son to make repairs about the house. He made boys' wagens, bird cages, sleighs and other things, displaying considerable ingenuity in their construction.

HEALTH AND HYGIENE.

TOO RIPE AND UNRIPE FRUIT AS A CAUSE OF SICKNESS.

Bacteria in the Soil at Different Depths
—Alcohol is the Devil in Solution—
Good Food as a Beautifier—Sunburn and Tan.

Nothing is more essential to method in learning than frequent reiteration, and it is therefore needless to plead excuses in seeking thus to impress even the elementary facts of sanitary science. It might be supposed that by this time every one understood the importance of observing particular care in the selection of a summer dietary, especially as regards fruit. Hardly any question of domestic management is either more vital or more elementary. Yet error continually arises in this connection in the simplest way. A few days ago a child died soon after eating strawberries. Why? Because the fruit had been purchased two days previously, and, as was only to be expected, when eaten was in a state of decay. It is impossible to resist the impression that neglect had something to do with the sad result in this instance. Luscious fruits are particularly liable to putrefactive change and such thrifty processes as exposure to a cold and dry air, spreading out and the like, suffice only to postpone decay for a brief period. We cannot do better than point to the incident above mentioned in order to remind the vendor and the purchaser alike that freshness is the only certain guarantee of safety when any succulent fruit forms an article of diet. We have not forgotten that another hardly less serious danger of the season awaits those who indulge in fruit which is under-ripe. In this case taste as well as judgment commonly interpose a caution the importance of which can hardly be exaggerated. Yet here, also, the consequence of neglect have too often been sadly apparent.

Bacteria in the Soil.
Some investigations carried out by Dr. Alexander A. Houston, of Edinburgh, respecting the number of bacteria in the soil at different depths, from the surface, go to prove that the micro-organisms become less and less abundant as the depth from the surface increases. For example, the average number of germs in a gram of soil examined, which was taken from the surface, was 1,987,799; at a depth of three feet this average fell to 173,807; and at a depth of six feet it was only 410. These figures are interesting, and would tend to show that at certain definite distances from the surface the soil would be sterile. —Medical News.

Sunburn and Tan.
While the skin is red, glaring, hot, dry and smarting, treat it just as you would treat a common burn, viz.: Apply that which will "take out the fire." The best remedy for a burn is a mixture of equal parts of lime water and linseed oil. If this cannot be procured, gently rub the inflamed part with olive oil, sweet oil or mutton tallow. After the soreness and redness have disappeared and the skin becomes brown or freckled lemon juice or ammonia are then of service. If the acid is used (vinegar is as good as lemon juice) add it to the bath water—one tablespoonful to the quart of water. The ammonia in less proportion—one teaspoonful to the quart. The oily preparations may be used every three or four hours, twice a day—night and morning is often enough to use the acid or alkaline bath.

Tippling.
"Alcohol is the devil in solution," says Sir B. W. Richardson, epigrammatically. The accomplished savant took the following position on the question of the use of alcoholic beverages in a recent lecture before the students of the University of Geneva. Alcohol should be relegated to the domain of medicine and its use made conditional on the sanction of the practitioner. A less restricted use accommodation vehicles from the corner of Broadway and Bleeker street to Wall street. Fare one shilling. His carriages were repaired at Andrew Wade's by young Stephenson.

In 1831, after his apprenticeship was completed, Mr. Brewer invited Mr. Stephenson to open a shop at No. 607 Broadway. On May 1, 1831, Mr. Stephenson began business on his own account. Then he designed the first vehicle in New York known as an omnibus, which was quickly followed by the Minerva, the Mentor, the Forget-me-Not and others. On the 20th of the following March his shop and all his stock were destroyed by fire. Then he started again at No. 204 Elizabeth street.

Mr. Stephenson has a growing omnibus trade, but the New York & Harlem Railroad, which was chartered on April 25, 1831, presented a new field for the exercise of his skill. This, the first of street railroads, confined by its charter to the corporate limits of the city, had for its president John Mason of the Chemical Bank. The business and passenger office was on the east side of the Bowery, two doors below Stanton Street. The company arranged with Mr. Stephenson to construct a car of entirely original design. The Stephenson car John Mason, named after the president of the road, has become historical as the first street car ever used. On November 20, 1832, the road was opened from Prince Street to 14th Street. On its first trip the car carried the Mayor and Common Council of the city. Mr. Stephenson received a patent on the car, now in possession of his family, signed by Andrew Jackson, President of the United States, and by members of the Cabinet. Other orders from the same company followed, and in three years orders were received from Paterson, Brooklyn, Jamaica, N. Y., and from Cuba and Florida.

In 1836 Mr. Stephenson purchased ground for a factory on 120th Street and 4th Avenue, but before he could build there financial troubles came and he had to give up the property. In 1843 he purchased the site of the present works in 27th Street, near 4th Avenue, then a rural district. His business increased so rapidly that he paid for the factory and land in seven years. As the first tramways on street railroads were not successful, no attempt to extend them was made in this city until 1852, when charters for 2d, 3d, 8th and 9th-avenue lines were granted. Mr. Stephenson supplied the cars for these roads. Street railroads are essentially American, and Mr. Stephenson's part in equipping the earlier ones carried his name into every civilized land.

Mr. Stephenson belonged to the Methodist Episcopal Church, as did his parents. As a child he attended the first Sunday school in this city, which was established in 1816 in Public School No. 1 at Chatham street and Tryon Row. His fondness for music was very marked. He was a performing member of the New York Sacred Music Society, which, 50 years ago, met in the Chatham Theatre, then a chapel. He was also a member of the Harmonic Society, and for 40 years was a choir leader. Thirty years of this time he was a member of the volunteer choir of 40 voices selected from Sunday schools and classes. Mr. Stephenson would never consent to become a candidate for political office, except that of School Trustee in the 21st Ward. This post he filled for 20 years.

A GREAT OFFER!
Great papers
—AND—
Great premiums
We are in a position to offer the NAPANEE EXPRESS and the Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, for one year for $1.80. This offer entitles the subscriber to a choice of the two great premiums given by the publishers of the Family Herald. These premiums are the "Star" Almanac for 1894, a superb book of 450 pages, or if preferred a copy of the great Family Herald Souvenir Picture which retails at twenty dollars. The premiums—Almanac and Picture—will be ready about the end of November, and will be forwarded in the order in which the subscriptions are received. Subscriptions to the paper may begin at once. Remember the offer of a choice of premiums holds good only to people who subscribe during the autumn. Afterwards the choice will positively be in use made conditional on the sanction of the practitioner. A less restricted use of it, however, would be open to such members of the community as had qualified (in Sir James Cox's phrase) to be "the intelligent custodians of their own health"—to such, in fact, as 'would be trusted to use it for dietetic or therapeutic purposes alone. The young, whose unimpaired nervous and circulatory systems stand in no need of adventures force, especially should abstain from alcohol. Premature indulgence in it inevitably forestalls its beneficial power at the time when failing health demands it, and the proverb "vinum lac senium" (wine is the milk of the old) loses its relevancy when by early habituation to it, the system has caused to respond to its medical administration. This is one of the most effective arguments against "moderate drinking." Professor Forel goes as far as to say practically, that moderation in the use of alcohol is a humbug. Certainly the so-called "moderate" drinking of the inhabitants of a city like Munich, which consumes per head, including women and children, 568 litres (a litre is almost a quart) of beer on an average, gives a test of how elastic an interpretation the adjective admits.

Good Food as a Beautifier.
A girl of great beauty became afflicted with a species of acne, which disfigured her once fine complexion, says the New York Evening Sun. No greater calamity could have befallen her. She went from physician to specialist, she was put on various diets, she tried every remedy that was suggested, and finally, wearied with efforts that were unavailing, she gave herself up to zinc salves. At length there came along a person of wisdom, who advised her to get a tonic, and obey its promptings to eat. Instead of dieting she needed to eat bountifully of nourishing food. What she needed was to enrich and start the tides of her ebbing blood. This prescription was not disagreeable, and she followed it faithfully. Before three months her unfortunate trouble was gone, and her skin, now smooth and flawless, is brilliant with color, and her good looks completely rehabilitated. And now comes a medical authority saying that more women sin through under-eating than over-eating, and all women sin in not distributing their food properly. English, French and German women eat four, and often five, times a day. American women only eat three times a day. The women who breakfast at 8 should eat again at 12. This should not interfere with luncheon, and dinner at 7 o'clock should be preceded by 5 o'clock tea or the German custom of coffee at 4. It is advisable to eat also before going to bed. Giving the blood work in promoting digestion removes it from the head and induces sleep. The practice of putting into the stomach three times in 12 hours just as much food as it can hold, and for 12 hours giving it nothing, is about as illogical an arrangement as can be desired.

BREAD ALWAYS FRESH.
It is Made of Ordinary Flour Mixed With Hazelnut Powder.
An ingenious and seemingly valuable invention is that of a German baker for a new method of keeping bread fresh for a long period. It consists in mixing ordinary flour with the powder of hazelnuts. The invention will, it is said, prove of great value when used in storing up any kind of flour or kindred substances, and also baked goods, such as rusks or biscuits used in the army and navy. In preparing the hazelnut flour, the kernels are first removed from the shell and then are ground or reduced to powder. Only the white substance of the kernel is ground. The powder or flour thus produced is added to that which is to be preserved in a proportion varying between 5 and 25 per cent., care being taken that the mixture is as thorough as possible, as it is important that the fatty element of the powdered nuts shall pervade the whole substance. The flour so mixed acquires a property which enables the bread or other goods made of it to keep much longer than similar goods of ordinary flour. The fatty or oily element prevents the absorption of moisture to a great extent, and, consequently, the formation of mould, mildew or similar growths. In addition to this the albumen and fat in the hazelnut enhance the value of the flour, because of their nutritive quali-

CANADA is suffering from over production of statesmen. Otherwise there would not be such a scramble out west for Lieutenant-Governorships.

THE British sovereign is an honest coin, containing a trifle over a quarter of an ounce of gold worth £3 17s., 10d., an ounce and passing for its intrinsic value. The United States dollar is at present price of silver worth less than two thirds of its face value.

A locomotive race between the great representatives of the American and the British builders' art, now on exhibition at Chicago will be interesting both as a test of the two wonderful machines and as a spectacle. People will watch it with something of the same feeling as when they look at a balloon gymnast. They would not like to see him fall, but if he falls they would like to see him fall.

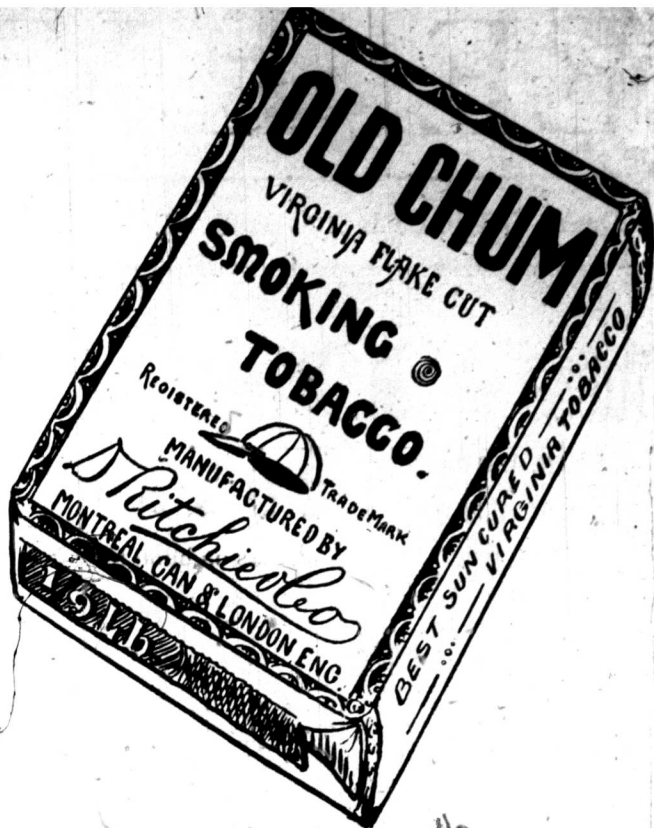

THE New Zealand parliament has adopted a law giving women the right to vote. If the women of New Zealand generally agree with their husbands in matters political as in things religious, the chances are that not much change will be noticed in the way of conducting the colony's affairs. If they disagree the law will have introduced a new element of discord into domestic relations, and public affairs will not have been improved.

President Palmer, of the World's fair, seriously proposes to take up a subscription for the Duke of Veragua. The success of the last few days of the great show is apparently turning the managers' heads. Outside of being a descendant of Columbus, the Duke's chief claim to distinction is said to be as a breeder of fighting bulls. Neither ground affords a very strong claim for public aid in a year when toilers are crying for bread.

THE United States Senate has started on the eleventh week of its talk on the Silver bill. The outlook for the passage of the Democratic tariff reform measure is not promising. If less than a quarter of the senators can for three months block a silver law supported by two-thirds of the House of Representatives and backed by two-thirds of the county, one half of their number should be able to keep up an anti-free trade talk till the next election.

THE Ways and Means committee of Congress have decided to recommend putting the following articles on the free list: Wool, binding twine, cotton bagging and ties, lead, tin, iron ore, coal, timber, hewed, sawed and unmanufactured, salt, hemp, needles, copper ore, vegetables, meats, games and poultry, eggs, beans and seeds. It cannot be stated that this is official for the committee is working in secret and all official information is withheld. The chairman of the committee, Mr. Wilson, of West Virginia, is in an embarrassing position as to coal, for his state is a coal producer and is opposed to the abolition or reduction of the duty of 75 cents a ton on bituminous coal.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

M. Editor.—I was perusing some remarks made in your valuable paper of 6th inst., re purchasing of water works, electric light, and gas, by the town. As you seem to be interested in the welfare of the town, will you please tell us in your next issue what amount the town is now paying for water, electric light and gas. I think this a very favorable time for purchasing the water works as it is well known that a few thousand dollars in hand now could be turned to good account in the United States where the proprietors of the water works live. Mr. Editor, can you give some data, and give it in your next edition so that we can form some opinion of what these franchises can be purchased for, if they can be purchased at all.

Municipal clerks are beginning to make preparations for the prohibition plebiscite, and it may be of some interest to the people to learn exactly what is required by the act. The clerk of each municipality must cause to be prepared ballots colored yellow for male voters and blue for female, with the question printed upon them:—"Are you in favor of the immediate prohibition by law of the importation manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage?" These ballots are to be given at the January election to all persons entitled to vote at legislative elections, and to widows and unmarried women entitled to vote at municipal elections. Within two weeks after the election the clerk must make declaration of the number of males and of females entitled to vote, the number of each sex who voted 'yes,' and the number who voted 'no.' A week later this return must be transmitted to the Clerk of the Legislature as an official record. The mode of obtaining the will of the people will give absolute information regarding the much discussed question as to whether a majority of women only favor prohibition.

Hon. Wilfried Laurier addressed an immense gathering of Chateauguay County electors at St. Martine on Oct. 17th. Accompanying him were Messrs. Bruneau, member for Richelieu; Tarte, of L'Islet; Schryver, of Huntingdon; Monet, of Napierville, Brown, of Chateauguay; Stevens, local member for Huntingdon; and other prominent Liberals. This is Mr. Laurier's last meeting in Quebec as he intends to speak in Ontario again before the session, his proposed visit to British Columbia having been postponed till next year. Mr. Laurier was tendered a flattering reception, and a number of addresses were presented to him. In his reply the gifted Liberal leader dealt with the unjust treatment the farmers were receiving at the hands of the government. If the government had been unable to secure reciprocity it was because the manufacturers had been opposed to it, and "they run the Government." As between the interest of the farmer and the protected manufacturer he would stand by the farmer. This he would declare openly in Montreal, as elsewhere. When farmers are prosperous the country will be prosperous. Mr. Laurier answered the disloyalty cry raised against him and also reiterated his recent stand in regard to the Manitoba school case.

MARSHALL MACMAHON DEAD.
The Ex-President of France Summoned by the Grim Reaper.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Field Marshal MacMahon, Duke of Magenta, and ex-President of France, died yesterday morning. The Marshal's death was due to the effects of an attack of the grip which he suffered from in May, and from which he never fully recovered. His great age, 85 years, told against him and his death was expected.

But little has been heard of Marshal MacMahon since he retired from the presidency on Jan. 30, 1879. Mme. MacMahon, who is still alive, has the title of Duchess of Castries.

The MacMahons were always a fighting race, and the name is prominent in French military annals, sharing in glory and disaster. One of his ancestors was at Waterloo, and it was he who led forward the regiment which made those three terrible charges that are recorded among the great deeds of the French army. Only 100 men of its number remained, and of these all but eight were wounded.

A recent biographer, speaking of Marshal MacMahon's Irish descent, says that he was a direct descendant of Brian Boru, the famous Irish king who conquered the Danes at Clontarf. He then goes on: "There is much romance connected with the story of the settlement of the Irish MacMahons in France. A way back in the 17th century, it is said, one Terence MacMahon was a retainer of the famous house of Sarafeld. He owned a farm at Leadmore, County Clare, which had belonged to his ancestors for many years. But he was fallen in fortune, and was glad to serve the great Sarafelds. He had a son named Terence, and this son married Anne Clarke, a waiting maid who had served the Castlemaines and had been brought to Ireland by Lord Tryconnel. This couple went back to Leadmore to live. Of all their children only one, John, lived to grow up, and as a companion for him, they adopted a nephew, John Baptist MacMahon. "These two lads were sent to France to be educated as physicians. They got on uncommonly well and after graduation were appointed to fine positions in the public military service. Lord Tryconnel was their

Holloway's Pills.

In cases of chronic indigestion, disordered liver, and general debility, these Pills are wonderfully effective. They indeed have so general and powerful an effect on the whole system that they clear away or ward off most of the evils that flesh is heir to. They cleanse the bowels, purify the blood, correct the bile, give tone to the stomach, excite a healthy appetite, produce sound sleep, and impart increased energy to both mind and body. The admirable properties of these far-famed Pills are too highly appreciated to require any comment here, as they are resorted to by rich and poor of every nation. The cures they effect are not temporary or imperfect, but they bring about a marvellous and most beneficial change throughout the entire body, and enable it with renovated powers to resist the approach of all future attacks.

where the latter was French Ambassador and the former physician to the embassy. There he spent twenty years and was a close friend of Voltaire. He left one son, Patrick MacMahon, who won the favor of Napoleon Bonaparte, and was librarian to the Faculty of Medicine in Paris for many years.

As for John Baptist MacMahon, he was even more successful. Being a stalwart, handsome fellow, with a fine touch of blarney, he was a prime favorite among the ladies of the French court. One of them got him a place at the head of a great hospital at Autun and introduced him to a crippled old woman there who was worth 3,000,000f. The doctor cared for the old woman until she died, and then found himself heir to all her fortune. Then he married a great lady, one Charlotte le Belin d'Eguilly, who was the widow of one nobleman, daughter of another and niece and heir to a third. John Baptist MacMahon married her in 1754, and they had seven children. Some of these took high-sounding titles belonging to their mother's family, such as Marquis de Vianco, Comte de Charney and Baron Sully. The second son, who bore the last two titles named, died to Brussels during the French revolution and married a lady of the great Caraman-Chimay family, a niece also of Mirabeau. Their third son was named Marie Edmonde Patrice Maurice MacMahon. He was born at Autun in 1808, and became the "Grand Old Man" of France.

On July 20, 1882, Marshal MacMahon completed his memoirs, but he would not allow them to be published until after his death. They are in four volumes and cover the time between the Algerian campaign and the establishment of the French Republic. Mme. la Marechale MacMahon will have charge of their publication. Mme. la Marechale was never very popular at the Elysee. She was a strong legitimist and exceedingly devout. French wits said of her: "The Marshal governs France—Mme. de MacMahon governs the Marshal, and the cure of St. Clotilde governs Mme. de MacMahon." She is said to have wept bitterly when she quitted the Elysee. But she was a good wife and mother if an unpleasant lady president.

RUSSIAN RECIPES.

Odd Dishes That Would Seem Dainty and Delightful.

A Russian lady, who has viewed with pride the triumph of "Russian" tea in America, volunteers some more national recipes for which she hopes the same success. While some of them are rather startling to the American ideas, others "sound good," which is a housewife's criterion. Here, for instance, is a recipe for "Little Livonian Pates."

Equal quantities of white and rye bread crumbs rolled fine; cold veal, chopped fine with fat bacon; cold boiled farina. Mix the bread crumbs to a smooth paste with melted butter and a little cream; mix the veal and bacon; then cut into rounds; flour, and fry in butter. Cut the cold farina into the same shapes, dust them with a little fried parsley and Parmesan; place them on the fried pates, and set both in the oven to get thoroughly browned and heated through.

And here is what she calls Lithuanian pates, which sound even more appetizing than the Livonian concoctions:

Make a good light paste and cut into small squares; place in the center of each square a mince composed of sweetbread, chicken, veal and game, all cooked with a chopped onion, in rich bechamel sauce; fold up and poach in hot bouillon; drain and cover with chopped parsley and fried bread crumbs; serve with white soup. These make a good dinner for any one, and the broth is both strong and palatable for invalids.

Here is an odd beet salad:

Ten red beets boiled, some grated horseradish, salt to taste. Peel and slice the beets, and put a layer into a deep china bowl; cover this with a layer of horseradish, then beets again, etc. Pour over enough boiling vinegar, well salted, to cover all; cover and set away for 24 hours.

Another novelty is apple-cress salad: Having washed and picked the water-cress, add four or five tart apples, peeled, cored and sliced thin. Mix with the cresses and dress with pepper and salt, oil and vinegar, as usual.—New York

THE RUSSIANS REACH PARIS.

THE MOST REMARKABLE DISPLAY OF MODERN TIMES.

The Gay City in Holiday Attire and the Populace Goes Wild With Joy — Cheers For the Russian and French Armies.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—At sunrise the streets were alive with people bent on enjoying a holiday and giving a welcome to the Russian sailors. At 7 o'clock the streets were densely crowded. Work throughout the city is at a standstill. Among those who packed the streets were tens of thousands of work people. Every train was landed with thousands from the country. This incoming kept up until the day far advanced. Along the streets where the Russians were likely to be seen the windows, balconies, house-tops and chimneys were black with people determined to shout themselves hoarse in honor of the Russian visitors. The streets were nearly hidden with decorations, and the moving mass of people conspicuously displayed badges and other emblems of Russian and French colors.

The Russians arrived at Gare de Lyons, which had been handsomely decorated, at 9.20 a.m. and were received by the Cabinet culty the police forced a narrow lane through the vast concourse of people assembled around the public buildings. The crush was so great that the vehicles were carried forward by the throng amid deafening cheers, men, women and children running beside the carriages and grasping the hands of the Russians, who often rose from their seats, waved their hats and shouted: "Vive nos bons amis les Français," crowds replying, "Vive nos bons amis les Russes." Altogether the scene was unprecedented. All the prominent buildings are illuminated to-night. At a banquet in the Palais this evening President Carnot presided and all the ministers were present.

platform shouting "Vive la Russie," waving handkerchiefs, hats, sticks and umbrellas, seemingly determined upon making as much noise as possible.

Admiral Avellan and officers stood up in the carriages waiting to escort them. The Military Club replied to the cheers by crying "Vive la France." Some idea of the number of people assembled around the Gare de Lyons may be gathered from the fact that the police admitted that 100,000 people were around the railroad station boulevard. Every street leading to the Military Club was black with people, shouting for Russia and the Czar. It was impossible to move the carriages through the street faster than a slow walk, owing to the immense surging, cheering masses which blocked the way.

Admiral Avellan, replying to an address of welcome at the railroad station by the President of the Council, said he was happy that he had been chosen to return the visit of Admiral Gervais to St. Petersburg, and with a few complimentary remarks to France ceased speaking. The officers appeared thoroughly tired after their long journey, and the Toulon entertainments which preceded it.

One feature of note was the crowds' extreme good humor. They displayed absolutely no violence, while hundreds of thousands of men waved hats. Almost as many women waved handkerchiefs and sunshades, crying "Vive la Russie," as the Russian sailors slowly walked to the Military Club.

Admiral A. Vellan and his officers no sooner entered the club than the tremendous roars of cheering in the Place de l'Opera compelled them to reappear on the balcony. In reply to the greeting of the multitudes the admiral and staff waved their caps and cried, "Vive la France." This caused the climax. The crowd went fairly mad with excitement. The Russian commander's cry of "Vive la France" was followed by a deafening roar from the crowds. Cries of "Vive la France," "Vive la Russie," "Vive la Marine Russe" and "Vive le Tsar" could be distinguished for a long time. Admiral Avellan stood bowing and waving his cap on the balcony, while the crowd shouted itself into a state of frenzy. The shouting continued long after the Russian officers retired to luncheon. After luncheon the Russians attended divine service in the Russian Church, Rue Daru. On the way to church the scenes witnessed on the way from Gare de Lyons to Place de l'Opera were repeated. The crowds around the church and Rue Daru were almost as great as at Place de l'Opera.

The ceremony in the church was confined to the singing of the Russian hymn. The church was crowded, among those present being all the members of the Russian Embassy and many French officers. At the conclusion of the services in the church the Russians were driven to the Military Club, receiving another ovation as they passed through the streets back to headquarters. As on the occasion of the first arrival at the club Admiral Avellan was forced to appear on the balcony and bow to the plaudits of the multitude in Place de l'Opera. The enthusiasm of the crowds was worked to a high pitch by the fact that the Russian hymn was sung by a troupe of skilled musicians. This brought a storm of cries, amid which for the first time was heard the obnoxious cry, the shouting of which was not considered good taste of "Vive la France Arme" and "Vive la Russie Arme."

The Russians drove to the Palais Elysee this afternoon. The route was packed with enthusiastic people. Some persons raised hisses before the British Embassy, but this demonstration was soon suppressed. While the Russians were en route to the Palais the crowd sang the Marseillaise and cheered Russia, the Czar, France and the French army. On arriving at the Palais the Russian Admiral and staff were received with military honors and presented to President Carnot by Baron Mohrenheim, the Russian ambassador, in the grand salon on the first floor.

President Carnot, addressing the visitors, said: "May the loyal interchange of our feelings and friendship be an inspiration to all who have at heart the benefit of peace, confidence and security. The great Emperor who sent you, Messieurs, and whom I greet from this place, entrusted you with an exalted mission which you have worthily carried out. I bid you, therefore, welcome."

Admiral Avellan replied briefly, thanking the President for the courtesies extended to himself and officers on French soil.

The Russians then left the Palais and visited the Ministry of the Interior, Ministry of War, Ministry of Marine, Senate and Chamber of Deputies. It was with difficulty in Paris, June 17, 1818, where he entered the Conservatoire at the age of 26, and the following year carried off the great "Rome" prize, entitling him to residence in Italy, where he studied early church music. On his return to France he soon became known as a lyric composer for the stage by his pastoral of "Philonon and Baucis." Few composers who have risen to eminence have had more failures at the outset of their careers than the author of one of the most successful of modern operas, "Faust," which although not actually the first successful work of Gounod, took all the lovers of operatic music by surprise. What rendered his success more remarkable was the fact that Goethe's masterpiece had been previously set to music a hundred times. Not one of these efforts was considered worthy of the theme. M. Gounod is the composer, amongst other works of "The Mock Doctor," "Romeo and Juliet," produced in Paris and London in 1867; and "Polyeucte" produced at the Grand Opera, Paris, Oct. 7, 1878. His opera, "The Tribute of Zomora," was produced at the Grand Opera in Paris on April 1, 1881, and in the following year his sacred work of "The Redemption," was produced at the Birmingham musical festival.

Belmont Park Races.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—The four days' meeting of the Belmont Driving Park Association began Tuesday at Belmont Park. In the 2.15 trot the fastest six consecutive heats ever trotted in Philadelphia or vicinity were made, the three heat winners breaking their previous records. Bellini, who won the record heat in 2.13, lowered the track record 2 1/2 seconds.

The little court room in the new courthouse here was far too small to accommodate the vast throng that clamored for admission yesterday. Hooper was seen in his cell. He was whistling and seemed perfectly at ease. He chatted about baseball and other games, but said he would rather not say anything about his case. A small table near his cell door was littered with fruit and reading matter.

While the charge was being read to Hooper he stood quite calm and collected.

The principal witness yesterday was the mother of deceased, Rosalie St. Andre, wife of Toussaint Malo of St. Ambroise de Kildare.

She testified that her daughter was 30 years of age and married Hooper 10 years ago in Montreal. Witness told of a visit of Hooper and his wife to her place a month ago. Her daughter was then insane. Hooper arrived first and said his wife had jumped from a train. Her son and Hooper went in search of Mrs. Hooper and returned with her and brought her home. So insane was deceased when she returned home that she did not know witness and struck her on the head with a poker. So excited was witness at the time that she could not remember where Hooper said he found his wife.

He seemed to feel bad about his wife being so insane. Seeing he felt so bad witness told accused that it would be better if he kept his wife in an asylum. He afterwards got the commitment from the priest at St. Ambroise de Kildare.

A sensation was caused at this point by the witness trying to speak to the accused. The lawyers for the prosecution objected to this and the judge ruled that the witness had no right to speak to him.

Yesterday Hooper had changed his clothes and wore a new black suit instead of the brown checked coat and vest he had worn ever since his arrest, for he had received a valise from Port Hope containing clothing.

During the whole time while Mrs. Hooper was at witness' house she was continually watched, as she had threatened to run away. Hooper took his wife away at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Monday, Sept. 18. During her stay at St. Ambroise de Kildare Mrs. Hooper ate well, but did not close her eyes day or night. She had suffered from indigestion and vomited several times during her stay. She had run outside bareheaded and barefooted and washed herself from head to foot in spring water and this gave her a severe cold.

AFTER ACTOR HARRIS.

Jury Brubers Say He Refuses to Pay Them For Their Sick Work.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—"Sam'l of Posen" Curtis is not yet out of trouble. There are large-sized rumors floating around to the effect that his acquittal of the charge of murdering Policeman Grant was brought about by bribery. The charge is that Curtis was to pay the bribers eight thousand dollars. So far he has only put up $2800. Now one of the bribers threatens to kill Curtis unless the deficiency is made good. The actor and his wife are living on their ranch in Fresno County. Sheriff Scott has appointed a deputy to protect Curtis from violence.

Curtis, whose real name is Maurice Strellinger, was born in Detroit 42 years ago. He played for one season with a stock company in Toronto, but made his greatest hit as "Sam'l of Posen."

Actor Walter Eyttinge Dead.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—Walter Eyttinge, a member of "The Span of Life" company, died in the German Hospital of typhoid fever, after four days' illness. He was 65 years old, and was well known all over the country. His body will be taken to New York for burial.

Eyttinge appeared in Toronto several times. One of his greatest successes was the part of the Baron in "Jim the Penman."

MUST KEEP HER ARMOR ON.

THIS NOT A MOMENT TO PUT IT OFF, SAYS SALISBURY.

The Conservative Leader Delivers An Address At Preston—The Attack On the House of Lords a Cowardly Expedient to Avoid Consulting the Country.

PRESTON, Eng., Oct. 18.—Salisbury in a speech yesterday denounced the action of the Government in driving the Home Rule bill through the Commons to the exclusion of graver subjects. He instanced the great coal strike as a matter of much larger importance than Home Rule. He said the attack on the House of Lords was a cowardly expedient to avoid consulting the country. He admitted that the House of Lords was not perfect, but insisted that its existence was necessary to guard against one man's power. If, however, the Home Rule bill does not appear at the next session it must be regarded as abandoned. In examining this measure you not only consider its effects upon the finances of the country and its destruction of the liberties of the House of Commons, but its weighty external effects. The Route of the New Pacific Cable Has Been Decided.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The Times in a special article yesterday morning with regard to the Pacific cable, of which the first section, reaching from Queensland to Caledonia, is completed, says that the line will be continued by the following route: Caledonia to Niji, to Samoa, to Honolulu and to Fanning Island, and thence to Vancouver, British Columbia.

PRUSSIAN COUNT MURDERED.

Shot Down By His Gardener, Who Then Committed Suicide.

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—A terrible tragedy resulting in the death of two persons and the horrible death of another has occurred on the Twietzow estate of Count Blucher in Pomerania, West Prussia. Count Blucher discovered that a man employed by him in the double capacity of gardener and gamekeeper was carrying on a liaison with a pretty young girl employed as a maid in the castle. The Count at once discharged the man, but retained the girl in his service. The professing great repentance for her wrong-doing. The gardener was greatly enraged at his discharge and threatened to do the other servants that he would have revenge.

While the Count and Countess were strolling through the woods of the estate the gardener sprang out before them armed with a double-barreled gun. Almost before the Count could utter a word the gardener shot him in the head and then shot the Countess in the neck. The murderer dropped his gun and ran to the castle. He entered the hall and as the affrighted servants gathered about him to inquire as to his wild and dissipated appearance he drew a revolver from his pocket and shot himself dead.

Some gamekeepers in the vicinity of the scene of the crime heard the discharge of the gun and ran to the place. The Count and Countess were conveyed to the castle. The Count died shortly after the physician arrived. It is reported that the Countess also died yesterday afternoon. She before her marriage to Count Blucher was Baroness Neetzow.

ENGLAND'S SCANDAL.

A Prince Victimized Out of $35,000 and a Member of Parliament Yields Up $5000.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The identity of the persons concerned in the blackmail scandal which will shortly come into the courts has not yet been revealed. The names appear in The Sun disguised with dashes. The paper tells a long story of the career of the lady said to be charged with blackmailing a number of people of prominence, and who is said to have obtained £1000 from a well known Conservative member of Parliament. The lady figured in a notorious breach of promise case, and was mixed up in the French decorations scandals. The plan of the lady blackmailers was to hire a fashionable house in a highly respectable quarter of London, entice people of the highest social and financial rank to her house, and lay traps with herself as the bait which enabled her to blackmail the victims of large sums. Some idea of the extent to which the woman carried on the business may be judged from the fact that her latest victim an English prince, was bled to the amount of $35,000. The prince, smarting under his loss, placed the police on the woman's track and she sought refuge in flight.

Charbonnet's dead body with skull and limbs crushed was found at the bottom of the crevasse.

The Town Scales.

According to the proceedings at last meeting of the town council, it would seem that the council have allowed the market scales to be taken off the town property and used in a hired room. Produce is therefore weighed on any scales convenient. This is not in accordance with the law. The council should insist on having their scales on their own property. Neglect of this simple precaution last year cost the town $25 on Monday last.

The would-be burglar fired through the window, and then made off. The ball was found on Wednesday morning, and was of 32 calibre.

Some of them in falling struck on end and the inner ends played havoc with the ### Art of Debating.

Perceiving that at the present time there is great need for the young men and young women of our day being trained in the art of giving free expression to their views in public, the Eastern Methodist church of this town has organized a literary and debating society. We call this an age of freedom of speech and independence of thought, but still there are many of us, who, when we appear in public, seem to lose control of our organs of speech and become so embarrassed that we have to retire leaving our ideas unexpressed, or so blunderingly given out that they cannot be understood. It is to relieve its members of this timidity while addressing an audience that the society has been organized. Meetings of a very entertaining and instructive nature will be held on Thursday evening of each week, during the winter, and all the younger persons of the church are invited to be present.

Married in London.

Quite a pleasant event occurred Wednesday evening at the residence of the bride's mother, 843 Dundas st, when Miss Bertha Madeline, youngest daughter of the late Rev. G. N. A. P. T. Dickson was united in marriage to Mr. Frederick W. Daly, eldest son of Edward Daly, Esq., city, Rev. J. C. Antliff, D.D., performing the ceremony. The bride was very becomingly attired in a rich brocaded Bengalee costume, as was her maid, Miss Birdie Daly, sister of the groom, in grey Bengalee, trimmed with pink brocade. Mr. Russel Starr, of Toronto, supported the groom. After the ceremony a reception was tendered the friends and relatives of the young couple, who are very popular in church circles. Those attending from distant points were Mrs. Dickson, aunt of the bride, from Portland, Oregon; Mrs. Pepler, Guelph; and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hagson, Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. Daly left by the 11 o'clock west bound express on an extended tour, which will include the World's Fair.

Deseronto Races.

Thursday of last week was civic holiday in Deseronto and the people of that place celebrated it by a splendid programme of races. A large crowd from Napanee attended and report a good time, the day being all that could be desired. About sixteen hundred people were in attendance to witness the horse races, bicycle races and football match. The day's sport commenced with a five mile handicap road race, open to members of the Deseronto Bicycle Club, the contestants finishing in the following order: Hubert Nasmith, 1st; J. E. Lowey, 2nd; Milo Cole, 3rd. Time—23 minutes and 24 seconds. Also a bicycle race occurred in the park, in which there were five entries. The course was half-mile, best 2 in 3. The following is the result:—

Lowey, of Deseronto.....	3	2

Finnmore was awarded first prize and Lowey second. The race was open to Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington. A football match took place between the Deseronto club and the D. and D. Institute, of Belleville, the Mutes being victorious by 1 to 0. The horse races were started in the afternoon. In the running race the black horse Mack, of Cobourg, had the misfortune to strike his fore leg and was so lamed that he had to be withdrawn. The following is the result of the races:—

running under the name of Thos. Stewart. The men in the employ of these people would not permit the captain to make his lines fast on their docks, and threatened to cut his lines, claiming they had orders from headquarters to do so. The question arises what is a vessel bound through the bridge to do if these people are allowed to carry on such high handed work? The public will know what to expect if the Rathbuns and Stewart get control of the coal trade in Napanee; it will certainly mean high prices.

PRESENTMENT OF GRAND JURY.

We, the Grand Jurors of our Sovereign Lady the Queen, in the County of Lennox & Addington, beg leave to submit the following:—

We have visited the county gaol of this county and find five prisoners confined therein. We also find the gaol in a neat and orderly condition and no fault found by the inmates.

We find the closets in connection with the Court House totally unfit for use and would strongly recommend that proper ones be built for the public generally. We desire to thank your Lordship for the clear and comprehensive address delivered to us at the opening of the court, which enabled us to discharge the duties devolving upon us without any difficulty.

We also desire to call the attention of the proper authorities to the insanitary condition of the closets in connection with the gaol and would recommend that this defect be speedily remedied.

Finally, we desire to congratulate your Lordship on your seeming good health and express the wish that it may long continue.

Signed on behalf of the Grand Jurors,
JAMES REID,
Foreman.

Edison's Railway Newspaper

Had Edison been a less energetic boy he might have remained to this day a vender of news. But scarcely had he reached his fifteenth year when he resolved to edit and publish a paper of his own. For this purpose he purchased three hundred pounds of old type from The Detroit Free Press, whose composing-room was one of his favorite resorts when off duty.

Attached to his train there was a springless freight car, with a room set apart for smoking. Owing to the bad ventilation, passengers rarely entered this compartment. Here the newsboy deposited his type and set about the publication of The Grand Trunk Herald. It was a twelve by sixteen-inch sheet, printed by the pressure of the hand, and on one side only. The Herald was issued weekly, and sold for three cents a copy, or eight cents a month, and reached a circulation of several hundreds. The columns were devoted to railway gossip, changes, accidents, market reports, and general information.

Railroad men of prominence were among its contributors, and it became celebrated at the only newspaper in the world printed in a railway train. The journalistic ambition of the young editor was satisfied when the Herald at-

GENERAL NEWS.
Bishop Tucker writes from Mengo, the capital of Uganda: "I have just selected the names of those who are to be looked upon as candidates for ordination. Some little time ago I asked the church council to look out men of honest report, full of wisdom and the Holy Ghost, who might be appointed to the office of Deacons. They submitted to me a list of about fourteen names. Out of this list, with the advice of the missionaries, and guided, I trust, by the Holy Ghost, I have selected seven, whom I hope, God willing, to ordain deacons. Two of them are two of the greatest chiefs in the country."

How often one hears the words, "My sins are sins of omission, rather than commission," spoken in an almost boastful tone. One is too willing to settle comfortably on that idea, and put one's self on the back, and think, "Well, I'm a good fellow, after all." Does it never occur to us that the sins of omission can be worse, in some cases, than those of commission. A sin is a sin always, but sometimes in that committed there may be a great and strong temptation, which never wholly excuses, but makes one look with pity and compassion. The sin of omission is deliberate. It is the wilful neglect and setting aside of the duty to be done, for such blindness to actual obligations and disregard of conscientious performance of such duties lying plainly before us, there can be no excuse.—New York Churchman.

E. A. W. Hanington, appointed by Archbishop Lewis to canvass for the Ottawa episcopal endowment fund, reports the result of his labours in three parishes: Pakenham (124 families) contributes $708; Clayton (eighty-four families) about $675; Franktown (sixty-eight families) about $790; a good beginning for Lanark county, especially as a goodly percentage is spot cash, the remainder to be paid within a year.

Picton Gazette: "Hop speculators are beginning to make inquiries among the farmers. The quantity grown in Prince Edward has been carefully estimated by those usually well posted, who state that it will be considerably less than half a crop. Speculators talk 15c to 16c per lb., which ought not to hoodwink the growers, as there can be little doubt that the price will go a long way above this. Some growers express the belief that the price will yet reach 20c per lb. The Empire of Wednesday quotes: Brewers were bidding 15c for No. 1, with holders asking 20c. Yearlings and old crop in poor demand."

MARRIAGES.
McARTHUR—HAMM—At the residence of the bride's uncle, Mr. Fred Hamm, Ernestown, on Wednesday, Oct. 18th, by the Rev. Rural Dean Baker, Rector, Bath, Mr. Wm. Victor McCarthy, Grand Trunk Railway Engineer, Belleville, to Miss Emma Maud Hamm, of Ernestown.

publisher, and train-boy, Edison now purchased on the instalment plan a supply of chemicals, and having secured in the railroad shops some old retorts in exchange for papers he fitted up in the Herald office a chemical laboratory. Rich in Presentus's "Qualitative Analysis," which he had thoroughly studied, and the materials now at hand, he stood on the threshold of a new world, with the dawning consciousness of the message nature's untied forces had in store for him. Alas, an extra jolt of the springless car one day played havoc with the rudely constructed laboratory! In the wreck was a bottle of phosphorus from which the water had evaporated. The phosphorus ignited and set fire to the car, and, before he could say Jack Robinson, the hapless young chemist, editor, and vendor was soundly cuffed by the infuriated conductor, and thrown bodily from the blazing train!

Recalling the incident years afterward, Edison, in the laboratory at Menlo Park, gave so practical an illustration of the catastrophe that an explosion ensued, filling the place with stifling fumes, and creating a stampede among some distinguished scientists assembled in a room above the laboratory. Through the blinding vapor they descended, excitedly demanding an explanation.

"Oh!" said Edison, amused at their panic, "I was only showing the gentlemen how that explosion occurred on the Grand Trunk line."

The destruction of the boy's railroad laboratory transferred his operations to the basement of his father's house in Port Huron. In order that his chemicals should not be disturbed, he labelled every bottle "Poison."—August St. Nicholas.
